BT NEWS

Concurrent with our recent re-branding and the launch of our new website, I am pleased to announce that we have reorganized our client services department to maximize the resources available for -- and in support of -- our benefits clients.

Victor Barresi, Marissa Dalmata and Dawn Sylofski have new titles -- Benefit Advisor -- which we feel more accurately reflects their day-to-day roles and responsibilities. Victor, Marissa and Dawn will continue to be responsible for the active support of their respective clients.

The Benefit Advisors will now report to Marc Quinlan, who has been promoted to the new position of Manager of Client Services. In this new position, Marc will maintain his responsibilities as primary contact for his current clients, with support from the Benefit Advisors. He will also work alongside our President, Barry McNamara, to manage and coordinate the activities of the Benefit Advisors.

Finally, Director of Client Services Kyle Wessels will remain the primary contact for his current clients, while being supported by the Benefit Advisors on client- and member-support activities. This will allow Kyle to increase the time he devotes to the company's many new initiatives, including proprietary end-to-end business solutions.

Together, these changes will allow us to continue delivering the service that you've come to expect from us and will also help us grow and innovate even more to meet the challenges of a dynamic and constantly evolving marketplace.

When you have a moment, please visit our new website, www.benetechadvantage.com, to learn more about our new initiatives -- and please tell us what you think!

Regards,

John Panichi
